How She Managed Him.

It was at a Leap Year ball in the city of Kimball. The large hotel was crowded to the utmost with all the belles and beaux of the place, and it was noticed that there were a great many strangers present; but they seemed to be of a well-bred class, and although the host had endeavored to be very select in his company, they had received tickets some how; and as it was a public house he could have nothing to say, unless there was something out of the way upon which to base his opposition to their presence.

It was one of the most novel entertainments that had ever been given in the place. Many of the usual customs were reversed, even as far as dress was concerned, the ladies wearing postilion coats over their daintily trimmed skirts. Beside these coats they wore high standing collars, men's neckties, and as much expanse of white shirt front as possible: while every girlish head had the hair parted on the side.

Nor were the men behind in their toilets. for nearly every one blossomed out in a brightly-colored sash, a fan, and a lovely bouquet of flowers, while their hair was parted in the middle and arranged in innumerable little frizzes, or bangs, upon their foreheads.

The ladies enjoyed themselves famously, escorting the men from their residences, inviting them to dance, and taking them to supper.

Among the lookers on were some of the most aristocratic people in the city, who were laughing at the performances of the young people, and joking with the young ladies, who, with their men's right, were lounging in all parts of the rooms. These married people enjoyed themselves most laughing at the almost invariable mistakes that the girls made in their attempts to do the agreeable to their favorite gentlemen.

Georgie Webb was standing looking on, with her sister Jennie and her husband, Albert Ayers; but every moment her pretty head was turned toward the door, and any one could have told that she was looking for some one.

Her husband. Willis Webb, was a very wealthy man, and his wife was the most beautiful woman in the city. Under her influence he had given up the almost unquenchable desire for drink which once held him, and had not drank a drop for over two years. But to-night she feared for him, for she had not seen him for over two hours, and they had arranged to return home at twelve, and it was now nearly two o'clock in the morning.

"Jennie," she whispered, "what do you suppose keeps Willis?"

Jennie looked at the anxious little face of her sister, and knowing just what her thoughts were, replied,—

"I will ask Albert to go down and tell him that we are waiting for him to return home."

The relieved look in Georgie's eyes told how welcome were the words, and Jennie whispered in her husband's ear, and casting a smiling glance at Georgie, he arose and began pushing his way toward the door, encountering many dashing belles in his progress.

"What dreadful manners, Mr. Ayers," said one of the girls, "to be going about with out any escort!"

Albert laughed, but continued his course, and soon was lost among the jesting maidens.

Georgie's little golden head was still frequently turned toward the doorway, and at length she saw Albert coming, but, as she had feared, alone, and his face wore a compassionate look as he glanced at her.

"Did you find Willis?" she inquired half fearfully.

"Yes," answered Albert, "but—" than he paused.

"I know what you would tell me," she said sadly. "He has been drinking."

"Yes," answered her brother-in-law, "and I thought it best not to bring him up here among our friends. If you like you can go home with Jennie and me, and then I will come back for Willis."

"I think that will be the better way," said poor Georgie, wearily. "Come, Jennie, let's go immediately."

Willis Webb had not taken a glass of strong drink for two years, but to-night he had been over-persuaded by one of his old companions into taking just one or two drinks; but these had as quickly affected him as more had been wont to do in the olden times. He had realized his condition instantly, and endeavored to hide it as well as he was able, and sat down in a dark corner, thinking his brain would clear in a few minutes; but he was mistaken, for when his brother-in-law found him his mind was so cloudy that he only half understood what was going on aronnd him. Still it dimly seemed to haunt him that his wife wanted to go home early, and at length he arose and staggered into the next room, where a lady, one of the strangers of the party, was standing before the glass, arranging her hair. Her dress was a dark blue, like Georgie's and he walked unevenly up to her, saying.—

"Come on, old woman, lesh go home."

"Very well," quickly answered the lady. "Wait until I get a carriage."

"Sought we come foot."

"Oh, well, I will take you home in a little better style than I brought you. "Wait right here until I return."

"Wash you mean? Guesh I know nuf to go home without your bossing me."

"But, this you know is a Leap Year party, and the ladies wait on the gentlemen."

"Thash so? By George, I forgot! Hurrah for Leap Year! Hurry up!

It was but a few moments before the lady returned, and Willis Webb was hurried into a carriage, and sank in a heap upon the soft cushions. Five minutes later his fair companion was in possession of his pocket-book and costly jewelry. Poor Webb's indulgence was costing him heavily. Then she signalled the driver to stop, and the half unconscious man was assisted to alight, and the carriage drove away.

But it was not a woman who stood beside him now, but a light and slender man, who ran lightly over the pavement, leaving him to the tender mercies of any passer-by.

Georgie waited with her sister until Albert should return with her husband, but when he came he said that Willis was nowhere to be found; no one had seen him, and Mr. Ayers thought he must have gone home alone.

Georgie then started for home, with her brother-in-law by her side, and when they had walked about half of the distance they came upon the sleeping man lying right in their path.

"Oh, Albert, I believe that is he!" said Georgie, through her tears.

Albert bent overthe recumbent man, and then replied,—

"You are right, Georgie."

He shook Webb roughly until he got him upon his feet.

"Now, Georgie, if you will take one arm I will take the other, and so we will get him home."

When morning came Webb was himself again, and it was with a blush of shame that he met his little wife at the breakfast table. He told her the whole story; of his meeting an old friend he had not seen for years; of his slight indulgence; how after that his memory became indistinct.

"But, Georgie, I swear that I will never touch it again."

Georgie kissed her repentant husband upon the forehead.

After a while he asked her,—

"You took care of my pocket-book, of course, Georgie?"

"No, Willis, I have not seen your money."

"Then, as I live, it is stolen!"

And stolen it was. Search not only proved the fact but revealed another; his magnificent watch and diamond ring were gone also.

Willis Webb was a wealthy man, and was bitterly ashamed of his excess; but this was more than he could bear tamely.

He had some indistinct remembrance of being brought home in a cab, and he went down town and put the whole matter in the hands of a skilled detective. While in his office he learned that this was only one of a dozen bold robberies which had been committed the evening before, and every means was being taken to trace those polite stranger guests.

He touched no more drink, although his indulgence had awakened all his old desire for it. The episode had aroused all his wife's olden fear, and she watched him as a cat watches a mouse.

A month or two glided by, and then there came an invitation for Willis Webb to attend a wine supper, to be given by this same old acquaintance, who had taken rooms at the hotel.

"Oh, Willis, I don't want you to go!" cried his wife.

"Why not?" he asked. "You need not fear that I will drink anything."

"Oh! but I don't want you to go! Let's go to Jennie's to-night."

"But I have sent an acceptance, and Evans would be angry if I went anywhere else."

"Well, then, let's stay at home together."

"But I really wish to go myself," said Willis, the color rising in his face.

"Oh, Willis," she cried out with tears in her eyes, "I never can let you go in the world. I should not have a minute's peace all the evening."

"Georgie, don't be a fool! Don't you suppose I know enough to take care of myself? And I promise you that I will not drink."

"But that is just what they are getting together to do," said she, blushing, "and it's best not to put oneself in the way of temptation."

Willis knew this to be good and solid reasoning, but he felt a trifle galled at the careful watch his wife kept over him, and was determined not to be "led around" by any woman; so he resolved to go at any risk. And then he laughed at his wife's fears, and went off to business, thinking that he would go if only for a few minutes, and return before Georgie had begun to look for him.

The first man he met was one of the invited guests, and a worldly fellow of somewhat convival habits of life.

"Going down to Evans' to-night, Webb?"

"Yes, I think so; I suppose that you will be there?"

"Of course; the old lady cuts up a little rough about it, but I let her know I am my own master. Just as if there were any harm in a little fun!"

This conversation strengthened Webb's resolution to go also, for he felt an awful fear lest the fellows thought his wife had a little too much to say. And yet he knew that he owed his name to her, and the fortune which was now his would have been squandered but for her influence. Then the affair of the Leap Year ball came before his vision, and he felt a twinge; and then he settled the matter by thinking that he would go for a little while only.

When he returned home he found Georgie gotten up in a most ravishing style, and with a half dozen pretxts to keep him at home. She said nothing upon the subject, but she had some old songs and duets upon the piano, which she wanted him to practice with her."

"You know we used to sing so much together before we were married, dear," she said, "and we are getting fearfully out of practice."

Willis smiled furtively, and they practiced together for an hour or more, and then he made a move for the dressing-room.

"Oh, don't go off, Willis! I've got some yarn to wind, and I want you to hold the skeins; and then if you are going down the street, I want to go with you."

"Now, Georgie," said he, laughing, "why not be honest and say you don't want me to go to Evans' and done with it?"

"Well, I don't," she cried, laughing in turn. "And you won't go, either, will you, darling?"

"Of course I shall go! I have promised, and you would not have me break my promise, would you?" he replied.

"Yes, I would, if it were such a promise as that," she said, kissing him.

"Well, I shall not," returned he, taking out his shaving utensils.

Then Mrs. Georgie snatched away his brush and tossed it out of the open window, and laughed so mischievously that he could not be offended.

"Never mind," said he. "I can get shaved at the barber's."

And then the little wife threw her arms about his neck and kissed and coaxed him furiously for ten minutes.

His resolution was beginning to waver when his eye fell upon a powder that lay upon the dressing-table; it was a sleeping potion his wife took when she had neuralgia, and into his mind there instantly came an ignoble plot.

"Well," said he, as if yielding, "if you will go down and get each of us a glass of that lemonade I saw in the pitcher to-night, I will think of it before I go."

Away ran the happy Georgie, thinking now she was sure of victory, and soon returned with the pitcher and two glasses.

"I made this on purpose for you, Willis."

"Thank you, dearie. Now run away and fetch my dressing gown and slippers."

And while she was gone the unprincipled fellow dropped the opiate into his wife's glass.

"Now for a merry evening!" lifting his glass; and the two together drained the daintily spiced lemonade.

"But it shall be at Evans'," said the graceless scamp, darting into the dressing closet, as if to avoid his wife.

"It shall, eh?" said his wife, thinking him in jest; and she closed the door behind him and bolted it firmly.

"Oh, Georgia," said he remembering the narcotic was quick in its effect, "let me out quick, and I solemnly promise that I will remain at home with you."

But he was too late; the little golden head sank down slowly until it rested upon the soft plush carpet, and never stirred from its dreamless sleep until the morning sun shone into the open window.

Willis shouted and called, but the servants were too far off to hear him, and he had no resource but to stay in the close little dressing-room until his wife should awaken. Sleep was impossible, and he did some of the soundest thinking of his life during those long, chill night hours. The thought of his little wife lying outside the door was agony to him. But at last he heard her stir, and then she quickly unbolted the door, saying,—

"Why, Willis, have you been in there all night, and have I been sleeping on the floor?"

"Yes, dear," he confessed humbly. "I gave you that sleeping powder, thinking I would go for a little while to Evan's party; but you shut me in here, and then went to sleep."

"What a shame!" said Georgie.

"What a blessing!" said her husband. "And I will here give you a solemn promise never to take another drink, or ever attend another wine supper again."

"What's the matter with you people?" said Jennie, putting her head in at the chamber door. "Bridget told me you hadn't come down yet."

"Nothing—only we are a little lazy," said Willis, quickly.

"Then you haven't heard the news? They've found out the thieves at last, and that Evans at the hotel is the leader of the gang."

Georgie looked at her husband, and Jennie went on,—

"They have found your watch and ring, too. They were in Evans' trunk."

"Of all things! His party must have been a failure."

"Yes, the officers came in when they were at the table. Albert was there, and he said he never was so ashamed in his life."

And Willis Webb, after that had great respect for his little wife's wishes, and kept his promise religiously.

The First Saw-Mills.

The old practice of making boards was to split up the logs with wedges, and, inconvenient as the practice was, it was no easy matter to persuade the world that the thing could be done in any better way. Saw-mills were first used in Europe in the fifteenth century, but so late as 1655, an English embassador, having seen a saw-mill in France thought it a novelty which deserved particular discription. It is amusing to note how the aversion to labor saving machinery has always agitated England. The first saw-mill was established by a Dutchman, in 1663; but the public outcry against the new fangled machine was so violent that the proprietor was forced to decamp with greater expedition than ever did a Dutchman before. The evil was thus kept out of England for many years, or rather generations.

An Ideal Pastoral Sketch.

The Maid Who Would a Milking Go all in a Silken Gown.

[From Peck's Sun.]

It has remained for a wealthy gentleman in Connecticut to assert positively that 'There is nothing like a Jersey cow and a pea-fowl for the ornamentation of a lawn.' It is now more than likely that in a short time the passer by may see in nearly every front yard one of these aristocratic kind quietly ruminating anent the flower bed, beneath the umbrageous foliage of a syringa bush, while the pea-fowl, with its many hued tail spread out like a Chinese fan, promenades slowly to and fro, ever and anon lifting its voice in song, which said song, as is well known, rivals the notes of the nightingale or the mellifluous calliope.

And the daughter of the house—the pretty child of fashion—will trip down the front steps just before the gloaming, clad in picturesque attire, with a fourteen quart medieval milk-pail on her arm, and the latest 'agony' on her lower limbs, which the abbreviated gown does not conceal, but on the contrary seems to have a sort of law-low-for-black-ducks appearance. She will approach the gentle Jersey and call her pet names; 'Iolanthe, you dear, you perfectly charming creature, you too utterly lovely bossie, you will kindly oblige me by elevating?' And if the cow don't respond she will continue, 'Hoist, please, dear!' and gently push against the north-east quarter of the west half of the south-west section and seat herself on the hand-painted and embroidered milk-stool, on the wrong side of the cow. And right here it might be well to ask why custom has decreed that cows should be milked from the off side. There seems to be no good reason, and the milk-maids of Milwaukee should manipulate from one side as well as de udder, and settle the senseless custom at defiance.

Having got fairly seated, she will take off her six-button kids, spit on her hands, and commence extracting the lacteal fluid, and may go through the operation successfully—if Iolanthe has a sweet temper and the flies don't bite—to the admiration of the family, visiting friends, and such gentlemen as have stopped outside the fence to gaze on the charming idylic scene; but the chances are that about the time the first tiny stream of milk [warranted eight per cent. pure cream] strikes the bottom of the pail a horse-fly will sting Iolanthe amidships, the pretty tail ornamented with a knot of gay ribbons will switch suddenly to the left, and knock the pompadour nat of the m. m. off. Undismayed, but a little agitated, she will pick it up, put it on wrong side before, and proceed with the operation, saying: 'So, you naughty bossie; so, Iolanthe, pet, so, so! Do the horrid flies bite your delicate cuticle?'

In the excitement of the moment, she will squeeze too hard, and her eighteen corat diamond ring will hurt the sensitive animal, who will suddenly elevate the left posterior limb and knock her silly, and she will be carried into the house, and the doctor will be telephoned for and there will be His Satanic Majesty to pay generally. The hired man will finish the job that evening, and unless the petted child of fortune is a girl of more than ordinary nerve, she will not repeat the experiment, but confine her studies in natural history to pug dogs, bugs, dudes and similar curiosities.

Dead Men Don't Advertise.

It can be safely laid down as a rule that in these days of universal advertising the man who don't advertise either has nothing for sale which will bear talking about or he is so old fogyish in his methods of business that he has got so far behind the times that he will never catch up. There is no surer evidence of snap and energy in a business man or firm than liberal advertising. In the store or warerooms of a large advertiser the purchaser finds the latest styles, the best material, the most approved patterns, the most reliable goods and the most advanced business methods. Advertising pays, not only in the matter of attracting customers, which is the legitimate aim of all advertisements, but it enables the reader to see who are the really live and energetic men in any line of business, and by keeping them constantly in mind the reader of the paper can avoid the old fogy tradesman whose greatest mistake in life has been in not getting buried twenty-five years ago. Dead men don't advertise.

Stopped off at Niagara Falls.

A man, seemingly about sixty years of age, was telling the people in the waiting rooms at the Third street depot yesterday that he had been East to old Massachusetts to see his sisters, and that on the way back he stopped off at Niagara Falls.

'That's a place I never saw,' remarked a woman with a poke bonnet on.

'You didn't! Well, you've missed the awfullest sight on earth! I was jest stunned.'

'What is it like?' she asked.

'Well, there's a river, and the falls, and lots of hotels, and several Injuns, and the bridle veil, and land only knows what else. If my old woman had been along she'd have wilted right down.'

'There's water there, I suppose?'

'Oh, heaps of it. It pours and thunders and roars and foams and humps around in the terriblest manner. You have bit on a shirt button in a piece of pie, haven't you?'

'No, sir.'

'Well, the feeling was about the same—kinder shivery. Why, the biggest man that ever lived ain't half as big as as Niagara Falls! Let him stand thar and see that 'ere water tumbling over them 'ere rocks and he can't help but feel what a miserable hoss fly he is. You've fallen out o' bed, haven't you?'

'No, sir.'

'Well, it's about the same thing, you wake up and find yourself on the floor, and you feel as if you had been stealin' sheep or robbin' blind men.'

'What part of the falls did you most admire?' she asked.

'The water, mum,' he promptly replied. 'If you'd put 10,000 kegs of beer on the roof of this building and set them all running, they couldn't begin with Niagara. It's the terriblest, appallingest thing ever patented.'

'Cost you much?' inquired a gentleman.

"'Bout sixty-five cents. It's pooty tight times, and sixty-five cents don't grow on every bush, but I ain't sorry. It's sunthin' to talk about for twenty years to come. There's a chap in our town who used to travel with a circus, but he'll have to take a back seat when I git home. Flip-floppin' around in a circus don't begin with Niagara Falls."

"So, on the whole, you were pleased, eh?"

"Pleased! Why, I was tickled half to death? I tell you, if I had one on my farm I wouldn't sell it for no $50 in cash! I've looked into a field whar 750 fat hogs was waitin' to be sold for solid money, but it was no sich sight as the falls. I've seen barns afire, and eight horses runin' away, and the Wabash river on a tear, but for downright appalling grandeur of the terriblest kind gim me one look at the falls. You all orter go thar'. You can't half appreciate it 'till you've gazed on the rumpus."—Detroit Free Press.

Facial Freaks.

We have it on the authority of Dr. Karl Muller that in his boyhood he knew a man who, Janus-like had two totally different faces, one side laughing and the other crying. "Naturally," he said, "I dreaded this strange double face, with its one side smooth, plump, comely, like a girl's cheek; while the other was all scarred by the smallpox. This side of the face denoted churlishness, and while the other bore a smile, this boded mischief."

The same authority is also responsible for the following story: "I was once sitting in a cool underground saloon at Leipsic, while without people were ready to die from the heat, when a new guest entered and took a seat opposite to me. The sweat rolled in great drops down his face, and he was kept busy with his handkerchief, until at last he found relief in the exclamation, 'Fearfully hot!' I watched him attentively as he called for a cool drink, for I expected every moment he would fall from his chair in a fit of apoplexy. The man must have noticed that I was observing him, for he turned toward me suddenly, saying: 'I am a curious sort of a person, am I not?' 'Why?' I asked. 'Because I perspire only on my right side,' he responded. And so it was. His right cheek and his right half of his forehead were as hot as fire, while the left side of his face bore not a trace of perspiration. I had never seen the like, and in my astonishment was about to enter into conversation with him regarding this physiological phenomenon, when his neighbor on the left broke in with the remark: 'Then we are opposites and counterparts of each other, for I perspire only on the left side.' This, too, was the fact. So the pair took seats opposite each other, and shook hands like two men who had just found each his other half.

Fashionable ladies now wear the watch in a small pocket set upon the left breast. A slender chain is attached to the watch, one end being fastened to one of the lower buttonholes of the corsage. These chains are the latest novelty in jewelry.—Paris letter in Peterson's Magazine.

Signs of a Coming Panic and the Cause of it.

In persuing the daily press of the country we find the astonishing news of about two-hundred business failures per week occuring throughout the United States. In examining market reports we see that grain is down to a lower figure than it was for many years. Besides the country is flooded with people who are out of employment with no bright prospects before them, while money is so scarce that it is with extreme difficulty for the average business man to make his most necessary payments. What does it all mean and where is it all to end? are questions which are asked by the more observing class of people.

Ex-Senator Wallace in his great speech in West Virginia recently gives the causes of this alarming business stagnation in a very truthful way, when he says:

"We charge upon the Republican party that their policy of large grants of public lands to railroad corporations, and their high taxation of the people to maintain an enormous surplus of money in the Federal Treasury are the leading causes of our present business distress, and especially are they the causes of the glut of production, the glut of labor and the misery and distress of the miner, the artisan and the agriculturist. We charge, too, that under Republican rule and as a result of Republican policy our commerce has been swept from the seas, that our flag is scarcely seen upon the ocean, that the carrying of our own productions out of our own ports, by which our merchants and seamen could have earned $100,000,000 annually, has gone to British and German shippers, that our ports of Baltimore and Philadelphia can scarce give decent support to their pilot force, and that "thousands of tons of American vessels lie idle at the wharves of our great seaports, while the sea is white with the sails and the sky is dark with the smoke of the great merchant fleets of other nations, which swarm to our shores and transact the great carrying trade that our own vessels do not seem able to take a busy part in." Their policy affecting taxation, their statutes granting public lands and their stolidity as to our shipping and commercial interests have shrunken our trade, whilst our inventive genius and the vast tide of immigration have yielded capacity for production in a largely increased ratio. The result is business depression and over production, glut and misery.

The policy that produces and maintains in the Federal Treasury a surplus of over $400,000,000 is an unnecessary burden and destroys our industries. To it more than all else is attributable the business paralysis of the present hour This money comes from the earnings of the people and if it were back in the channels of trade and the policy that produced it reversed, every artery of commercial, financial, mining and manufacturing life would throb with renewed energy. It would stimulate enterprise and give employment to labor. A redundant revenue, an overflowing treasury, new vaults required to hold the surplus moneys, continued taxation, thousands of workingmen idle, strikes and lockouts, depression in business, how storage the contrast, how fatuitous the policy that produces it.

Lord Bacon compares money to manure. If gathered in heaps it does no good but becomes offensive. Being spread though ever so thinly over the surface of the earth it enriches the whole country."

THE Ohio canvass is warming up and judging from some remarks dropped by Blaine organs the Republicans are not near as certain of victory as they were in other campaigns. The fact is, Blaine will not receive the German vote in that state since he pledged himself a prohibitionist and there are hardly as many votes "for sale" in Ohio as in Maine.

JAMES G. BLAINE'S "aggressive" campaign is all taken up by defenses of his crooked official doings and by explanations of the nasty Mulligan letters. When he is done with that work the campaign will be over and he'll be out in the cold.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 22, 1884.

The political situation grows more and more interesting, from a Washington standpoint, as the campaign advances, and the office holding class of politicians here grow more nervous and excitable. The new installment of Mulligan letters, or rather "Dear Fisher" letters, have been the leading topic of discussion, and the prevailing opinion is that they close the case for Mr. Blaine. Some of those whose interests tie them to Republican success, and others of the class who stood by Dorsey and Brady, who believe in buying an election and wink at all sorts of official rascality, pretend to see nothing at them. But these do not constitute the majority of the people here, any more than in other parts of the country. Although we have in politics a great many men who live by it and do not care how they succeed so their side can keep in, still the great majority of people are honest and appreciate the importance of electing honest men to office. From every quarter intelligence reaches here of the increasing number of Republicans who are convinced that James G. Blaine is a scoundrel who took advantage of his high position to blackmail railroad enterprises and other schemes, whereby he has without a dollar of capital or without even being honestly engaged in any business, accumulated more than a million dollars. These men are quietly deciding to cast their votes against such a candidate, and they are so numerous that he will be overwhelmingly defeated. A tremendous effort is to be made by Elkins and his crowd to buy Ohio as Indiana was bought in 1880, and as Maine was bought a few days ago, but even should this desperate game succeed, it will not come anywhere near saving Blaine.

So far as is known here it is still an open question who will succeed poor Folger as Secretary of the Treasury. A good deal of speculation has been indulged in by the politicians and newspaper correspondents, but the President has not yet spoken. It is to be hoped that Mr. Arthur will not make it the vehicle for conferring further rewards upon his old New York city ward chums, like Bliss, Sharp and O'Brien. Mr. Coon, the Assistant Secretary, now acting, is such an excellent officer that most people would be very well satisfied to have him continued at the head of the department. Strolling through the various offices of the building yesterday, I noticed the usual number of visitors—the stream of tourists, bridal couples, etc., that may be seen there every week day in the year. Nearly every bridal couple that comes to Washington—Washington is the National bridal Mecca—visits the Treasury vaults. The young and invariably interesting couple want to closely inspect Uncle Sam's plentiful shekels. When they enter the vault the man in charge of it, after a few preliminary words of explanation, hands down a package of notes from a shelf and tells the bride to take it in her hands. He then explains that this package contains $20,000,000 in U. S. Treasury notes. The young lady is delighted to be able to go away and say that she has held so much money in her two hands. She is just too utterly pleased. The groom also wants to handle the package. They are further told that the notes are all of the denomination of $10,000. They constitute what is known as the "bridal package." Young married tourists have heard of this package, often ask to handle it just as soon as they enter the vaults. This is all very pretty. But it is a fraud on the young people. The Treasury here does not hold that amount of money. The bulk of the money is in the Sub-Treasury at New York. That "bridal package" is a gay deceiver. It does contain, however, notes of the denomination of $10,000, which would, in the aggregate represent $20,000,000 if they were only signed. But they are worth no more in reality than the paper on which they are printed, being minus the neccessary signatures.

Although it is three months since Congress adjourned, and three more before it meets again, the city is infested with thieves, small and large, vagabonds, courteous and audacious, swindlers, official and otherwise, to say nothing of ten murderers, black and white, who have made way with their victims since February last. Neither Sodom or Chicago could ever boast of such vileness as exists in the Capital of the United States to-day, yet the schools are crammed infinitely beyond their capacity, and the white element at least affects the very highest stages of civilization. Crime is indeed so rampant that the Chief of Police in his recent report announces the utter incapacity of our police court to attend to the business, although St. Louis with a population three times larger, and Chicago with its cosmopolitan populace four times larger, require but one. The police force here is inefficient both in numbers and discipline, facts so well known by the thieving gentry that their raids upon the Capital occur at periods as regularly as the phases of the lunar system.

PHONO.

A democratic mass meeting was held at Lock Haven on Tuesday night, which was addressed by Gen. W. H. H. Davis, candidate for congressman-at-large, Harry A. Hall, of the democratic state committee and Chairman Hensel. Ex. Gov. Curtin arrived late in the evening and made a short speech.

Violent Shock of Earthquake in Western States.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 19.

A few minutes before 3 o'clock this afternoon the telegraph operator at the Bee Line depot in Cincinnati received dispatches from the operators all along that road, from Cincinnati to Lafayette, Ind., inquiring if the earthquake shock had been felt in Cincinnati and stating that it had been preceptible at the offices from which the inquiries were sent. About 3 o'clock, Cincinnati time, the operator perceived a slight tremor in the building. The same thing was noticed in various offices in the city, but was not attributed to the earthquake until telegraphic dispatches from the West had come in. It was quite different in some of the suburbs in Cincinnati. In Clifton the agitation was violent enough to ring bells on tables and in some instances on doors.

The time of the earthquake, as reported by those who noticed it, varies from half-past 2 to a few minutes after 3, and the duration of the shock is variously reported at from ten to twenty seconds.

Advices from Indiana report that the shock was felt at Seymour a few minutes before 3, and that it was also felt with great severity in Lawrenceburg, Ind., about the same time.

THROUGH OHIO.

At Toledo the noise resembled that of a distant blast. Reports from various points in that vicinity show that the shock was quite general throughout Northwestern Ohio and Southwestern Michigan. The duration of the shock was from ten to thirty seconds and the course apparently from southwest to northeast. It was most violent at Defiance, Ohio, where the swaying of buildings created much consternation. The people hastily abandoned their houses and the Methodist Conference, in session at one of the churches, immediately adjourned, and some of the people rushed to the street.

IN INDIANA.

Reports have been received from the following towns in Indiana: At Portland the shock was slight. At Red Key there was a slight shock. Several business men ran into the street to see if their buildings were falling and to ascertain the cause. Great excitement prevailed for a few moments. At Albany large brick buildings were shaken. Many other places report about the same results, namely, buildings shaken, glass breaking, furniture moving, dishes and tinware falling from tables and shelves and people running into the streets from fright.

IN ONTARIO.

WINDSOR, Ont., September 19.—Quite a heavy shock of earthquake was experienced here at 2.45 p. m. to-day.

LONDON, Ont., September 19.—A quite perceptable shock of earthquake was felt in this city about 3.25 this afternoon.

DRESDEN, Ont., September 19.—At 3.20 p. m. to-day a distant shock of earthquake or distant explosion was felt here. It seemed to follow the river and vary in force, in some instances causing quite a rattling of dishes and tossing of furniture.

IN MICHIGAN.

DETROIT, September 19.—An earthquake shock was felt here at 2.45 o'clock this afternoon. No damage was done, but the shock frightened many persons. In some localities, particularly in high buildings, it was more noticeable than in others. All along Griswold street the shock was felt very distinctly and men rushed into the street, looking about anxiously as if expecting the buildings to fall upon them. The shock lasted from ten to twenty seconds and there was a swaying motion that rattled windows and shook chandeliers.

Unveiling the Bronze Statue of Gen John F. Reynolds in Philadelphia.

This festive occasion took place last Thursday in front of City Hall, Philadelphia. The statue was erected by a memorial association at an expense of $25,000, mostly furnished by Joseph E. Temple, and stands on a granite pedestal fifteen feet high, paid for by State appropriation. Including the pedestal the top of the statue is twenty-seven feet above the pavement. It was unveiled in the presence of several thousand people, with soldiers in uniform, veterans with their flags and bands in gay attire grouped about the statue.

As the striking visage of Ex-Governor Curtin, the president of the association, came into view when he arose to call the meeting to order, a great cheer went up that showed there was some in the crowd who recognized him and indentified him with the stirring times called up by the occasion. "As a great Christian people, under a great government, maintained by strife, here to render homage to a great soldier who died that liberty might live," he called the assemblage to order. In a prayer the Rev. J. Harvey Beale, who was in Reynold's corps, "thanked God for Plymouth Rock, Yorktown and Gettysburg, and for the deeds and results that made them stepping-stones in the nation's progressive life."

With a few words Ex-Governor Curtin formally turned the statue over to Mayor Smith, who made a little speech in response. Then followed the oration of the day, by Colonel Roberts.

IN TIME OF PEACE PREPARE FOR PEACE.—Changes of climate, diet and water, ofttimes atmospheric changes alone, will subject some member of the family to cholera morbus, dysentery, &c., when the wail of misery in the "wee sma' hours of the night" announce the fact, and you are sent from your comfortable bed across lots of down back alleys for a doctor, 'twould be a good time to reflect that had you only secured a bottle of Curtis' Carmelite Cordial in time, you could with a few drops have headed off the attack, saved a doctor's bill, and secured a peaceful night's rest. Dissatisfied purchasers can have their money refunded.

—The picnic season is on the decline.

—Farmers are busy cutting off corn.

—Tax Receipt Books for sale at the JOURNAL store.

—The forest trees are donning their beautiful autumn dress.

—Dr. F. H. Van Valzah, of Spring Mills was in town last week.

—Mr. C. Walter, brother of cashier Walter, came to town yesterday.

—Miss Ada Harter, of Mifflinburg, is visiting at R. B. Hartman's this week.

—A great many of the wells in town are dry, and the people anxiously look for rain.

—Rev. Herald now wears the smile of a happy man. His young heir is doing well.

—Mrs. J. O. Deininger, of Centre Hall, is visiting friends at Millheim this week.

—Splendid campaign shirts are the latest attraction at Kauffman's store. Go and see them.

—A number of town folks attended the Granger's picnic on Nittany mountain last Thursday.

—The academy building at Aaronsburg presents an imposing appearance since its renovation.

—Housekeepers are beginning to get fidgety on the question of housecleaning and putting up stoves.

—Miss Rose Musser, of Hartleton, spent a few days with Mr. & Mrs. F. Catherman, on North street.

—Mr. E. C. Gale, the well-known and popular hardware agent, paid this town a visit beginning of the week.

—D. A. Musser has several men at work this week repairing the race course, north of his brick mill.

—Mrs. J. W. Snook left for Philadelphia on Monday morning where she expects to remain for some weeks.

—J. H. Reifsnyder, Esq., and Mr. R. B. Hartman are absent, attending court at Lock Haven, this week.

—Autumn commenced last Tuesday and from that day on the nights became longer and the days shorter.

—Mrs. Rev. Neff, of Blain, Perry Co., Pa., spent several days with her sister, Mrs. B. O. Deininger at this place.

—A number of folks in the country are engaged in making cider and boiling applebutter, however the apple crop is small.

—Mr. P. S. Meyer sold his tenant house on Penn street, occupied at present by Mr. Harvey Confer to Mr. Noah Stover.

—John Wolf, candidate for county commissioner gave us a call last Saturday. He seemed very much pleased with the reunion of Gast's family last Thursday.

—Cook Condo, of Rebersburg, tells us that he got about 300 bushels of first-class apples from his orchard. A large yield.

—Mr. William Shafer, of Aaronsburg, will make sale of most of his personal property on Saturday afternoon, October 4th.

—Last Saturday's township election resulted in favor of the change of election place from Musser's hotel, Millheim, to Kleckner's hotel, Coburn, by a majority of 47.

—Miss Jennie Deininger and Miss Clara Reifsnyder, who had been on a visit to Centre Hall last week, report an enjoyable time.

—After Blaine and Logan have followed up the earthquake in Ohio, that state will be so well shaken, that its people will earnestly long for a little rest.

—Mr. Snyder Tobias, who has been lying seriously ill at his residence on North street for about two weeks is at this writing—Tuesday afternoon, feeling some better.

—Another street lamp on Main street. It was put up by the M. E. church and will give light to the eastern part of the town. How about Penn street? Don't all speak at once.

—Street commissioner Abs. Harter was busy last Saturday, making repairs on the poor boardwalks of town. Keep on in the good work, Abs. the citizens will certainly be thankful.

—The U. B. church on the hill has received a coat of paint on the outside and already presents a very neat appearance. Other improvements around the church premises are to follow.

—Before you begin to use a flue that has been out of use all summer examine it thoroughly to see if it is safe. Many houses are burned down in the fall of the year for want of carefulness.

—Mr. John Kerstetter, Jr., still makes a business of doing special jobs at carpentry. John is really an expert at the business and has large experince, both in making out plans, specifications and drawings, as well as a practical workman. People who entrust their work into his hands can safely rely on having it done in best style at the lowest prices. tf —Equinoctial winds.

—A long-needed improvement—a new sidewalk in front of Harter's grocery on Main street. W. J. Springer, the owner of the building, had the old boardwalk repaired and it is at least passable now.

—The public schools of Millheim will open on Monday, Oct. 6th. Mr. F. E. Vonada, of Zion, teaches the grammar school, Miss Rose Harter the primary, and Mr. M. I. Jamison the North street school.

—Our pleasant neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Walter, have after an absence of several months, again taken possession of their residence on Penn street, and consequently the premises wear a cheery look.

—A crew of men were employed on Monday to clean up the debris around the Ev. church, under course of erection at this place. A large amount of lumber was also hauled for the inside frame work.

—There was a large crowd of people at the Granger's picnic last Thursday, but all of them returned home chilly and cold. The coolness of the weather certainly marred the pleasures of the day to some extent.

—Several of our delinquent subscribers received statements of their accounts with this office and we urgently request them to give those reminders their immediate attention, as we are very much in need of the cash.

—B. F. Kister, besides being a printer and shoemaker, is John Miller's right hand man in the butcher business. Frank does not seem to be a fraid of making himsely useful when help is needed, and always proves a good assistant.

—Millheim was quite lively last Saturday. The special township election, which was very animated, brought many people to town. The festival in the evening seemed to have the same effect and the streets were full of life and bustle.

—The festival held in the town hall last Saturday evening was financially a success. The proceeds amounted to $70.00 and will be quite a help towards the town clock. The Millheim band was present by invitation and furnished some very fine music.

—Our friend, E. W. Mauck, in a letter informs us of his intention to return home in about a week. He says it is so cold at Copenhagen that a fellow is always glad to sit at the red hot stove. "No place like home," Edward, and when you are here, you would better stay.

—Dinges, Trumpfheller & Co., are going east next Saturday and expect to buy a heavy stock of fall and winter goods. They are wide-awake business men and will make trade boom. Read what they have to say in another column reserved for their new advertisement.

—On Tuesday afternoon intelligence reached us of a fire which destroyed the grist mill and house near Tusseyville, better known as the "stone mill," and occupied by Mr. S. P. Ruhl. The fire occured on Sunday night, at about two o'clock. We were unable to learn particulars.

—Mr. Israel Rubland family, of Buffalo X Roads, were the guests of A. J. Harter's on last Thursday. They, in company with some lady friends, took a trip to the attractive Penns valley caves on Friday, returning late in the evening and no doubt had a very pleasant time.

—The valuable farm in Penn township, and the fine hotel property in Millheim, of Jonathan Kreamer, deceased, will be offered at public sale on Saturday, Oct. 18th next by the executors of the estate, A. F. and J. H. Kreamer. See bills and advertisement in another column.

—D. M. Rockey, Administrator of the estate of Solomon Kleckner, late of Miles township, deceased, will make public sale of the real estate of the deceased, on Saturday, Oct. 11th. At the same time Mrs. Catherine Kleckner the widow of decedent, will offer for sale her personal property.

—Prof. D. M. Wolf tells us that, like in former years the desk in the school room where the examinations were held was elegantly adorned by a large bouquet of flowers, which some kind lady furnished for the occasion. He wishes to return his thanks for the compliment, assuring the donor of his appreciation.

—The members of the Reformed congregation of Aaronsburg contemplate holding a church fair some time during the month of November. Preparations for this enterprise are already being made and it can be judged that the affair will be the most successful of the season. We will be able to give particulars in a future issue.

—The Millheim Journal is invited to inform its numerous readers in its next issue that Blaine's majority in Maine was 20,000 and also that at this time four years ago the Democrats carried Maine by a small majority—hence the great victory.—Bellefowte Republican.

All right, Mr. Republican, we hasten to inform our readers that Blaine's majority in Maine was 20,000. But we must also tell them that we fail to see the great victory, he speaks of, when it cost nearly $300,000 to bribe the majority of voters for the magnetic republican candidate. A nice victory and a nice way of gaining it, indeed!

—An order has been issued by the Pennsylvania railroad company to the effect that conductors and brakesmen permitting persons to ride on their trains will have to pay full fare for dead-heads over the entire length of the division on which they are found riding.

—The Clinton Democrat, the old democratic organ of that county, and one of the best weeklies published in the state, has been purchased by Mr. E. H. Thielecke, who took personal charge of the office on the 15th inst., inaugurating his editorial duties with a neat salutatory in his issue of Sept. 18th. May success acompany the labors of the new proprietor.

LADIES' MEDICAL ADVISER.—A complete Medical Work for Women, handsomely bound in cloth and illustrated; postpaid for 10 two-cent stamps. Tells how to prevent and cure all diseases of the sex, by a treatment at home. Worth its weight in Gold to every lady suffering from any of these diseases. Over 10,000 sold already. Address NUNDA PUBLISHING CO., Nunda, N. Y. 28-3m.

—From last week's Bellefonte Watchman:

We are sorry to state that Mrs. Haag of Pleasant Gap, wife of Mr. Gotlieb Haag, had the misfortune to break one of the small bones of one or her ankles on Sunday evening last and also to put the ankle out of joint. This accident was caused by stepping on a rolling stone after dark, and was a painful one indeed. The good lady will no doubt be laid up with it for several weeks, and she has our sincere sympathy. Mr. Haag was in town on Monday looking for a housekeeper.

—The turnpike bridges, both at the eastern and southern end of town are in a bad condition and need repairing. The plank are drawn to a round shape by the sun and spring up a foot at each end whenever a vehicle passes over them. It is almost impossible for pedestrians to cross while a team is on the bridge. We think the turnpike companies should construct their bridges more substantially, especially at places where travel is as frequent.

—We received a copy of the Centennial Number of the North American, published daily at Philadelphia and now reduced to the price of one cent. It celebrated its 100th anniversary last Saturday, when it issued a twelve-page paper, over-flowing with reading matter. The North American is now one of the seven penny papers published daily in the Quaker City, and is a live Republican organ.

—Mr. H. H. Weber, of Rebersburg, the teacher of the select school at that place, was one of our callers this week. He informed us that his school will close to-morrow and that he expects to return to Warren county, where he accepted the principalship of five public schools. Mr. Weber is a gentleman of learning and has during the period of his teaching at Rebersburg, which is his native town, won the confidence and esteem of that community.

MULTUM IN PARVO.—McDonald's Great Blood Purifier or Sarsaparillian Alterative is the most highly concentrated, most harmonizing and skillfully combined of all the blood medicine offered the public. Many certificates from well-known and worthy persons could be furnished to substantiate the virtues claimed for this great medicine, but the manufacturer prefers simply to say any purchaser feeling the benefit derived from the use of a bottle not equivalent to the seventy-five cents invested in the purchase can have their money returned.

—At a meeting of citizens held in Penn street school house last Tuesday evening for the purpose of making arrangements to purchase the town clock, which is to be placed on the steeple of the new Ev. church, the following committee was appointed: W. R. Henney, W. S. Maize, P. H. Musser, J. Spigelmyer, J. R. Bair. This committee was instructed to at once proceed with the purchase of the clock, which is to cost about $350. In a couple months we can expect to hear the hourly announcement of the time all over town.

—The presence of Rev. Wm. Engle, of Pillow, Pa., was a pleasing feature of the Harvest Thanksgiving Services in the Rebersburg Reformed church. The weight of years does not seem to burden the ex-pastor of the Rebersburg charge. He still overflows with good humor and received a hearty welcome from his old friends.

Rebersburg Reformed charge contributed this year over one hundred and forty dollars at its Harvest Thanksgiving festivals. During late years the charge has made rapid advancement in the cultivation of liberality.

JAS. R. IRWIN, druggist, Curwisville, Pa., writes:

"J. A. McDonald, Dear Sir:—Send us ½ gross of your Worm Powders, they give good satisfaction to our trade. Professionally, I always recommend them, as I consider they embody to the utmost the principal and most desirable points in vermifuge—smallness of dose, easiness to take, compactness and elegance, while our steadily increasing sales attest their value as a worm destroyer and the satisfaction they give our trade."

Dissatitfied purchasers can have their money refunded.

OUR NEWSPAPERS.—According to Edwin Alden & Bro.'s (Cincinatti, O.,) American Catalogue for 1884, there are 14,867 newspapers and magazines published in the United States and the British Provinces. Total in the United States, 14,176; in the British Provinces, 691; divided as follows: Dailies, 1,357; Tri-Weeklies, 71; Semi-Weeklies, 168; Sundays, 295; Weeklies, 10,975; Bi-Weeklies 39; Monthlies, 1,502; Bi-Monthlies, 26; Quarterlies, 83; showing an increase over the publications of 1883 of 1,594. The greatest increase has been among the Weekly Newspapers of a political character (?) while it has been least among the class publications. The book is very handsomely gotten up and contains some 850 pages, printed on heavy book paper, elegantly bound in cloth. It will be sent to any address, prepaid, on receipt of $1.50.

Rebersburg Locals.

Ira W. Small has left our town for Newton, Kansas. He was accompanied by James Miller, who proposes to make that state his future home.

Austin Gramley was severely kicked by a horse. He is slowly mending and will soon be able to attend to his work.

Gramley Bros. sold their stock of goods to T. E. Royer and L. B. Frank, the new firm being Royer & Frank.

Judge Frank is enlarging and remodeling his old store room, and when finished it will be the boss room in town.

Rev. Engle and wife, the Reformed minister formerly at this place, were here visiting their friends.

Erastus Burkert, from Chicago, is passing his summer vacation among us.

Rev. Landis and family have returned to their home in Adamsburg, Snyder county.

Benjamin Winters from Lock Haven and Cora Brumgart from Connellsville were seen in our town during the week.

The "Gast Reunion" held in Mr. John Wolf's grove, was quite a success, some ninety of the Gast relatives having been present. Quite a number of these came from Ohio. Boz.

Convinced.

Mr. U. G. King, foreman of the Leetonia Democrat, Leetonia, Ohio, writes: "DR. S. B. HARTMAN, Columbus, Ohio, Gentlemen: Some time since, I had occasion to doubt the genuineness of most of the articles that appear in different papers in regard to your wonderful PERUNA, and my curiosity was so great that I determined to write to one of the many people that claimed to have been cured by this medicine, and accordingly wrote to Mrs. J. W. Reynolds, of New Lisbon, this county, and received the following reply." "I received your letter this evening, and in reply would say that PERUNA, I believe, saved my life, and I can not recommend it too highly; for all complaints it is the best medicine in existence. It seems to help you as you swallow it. I would advise any one suffering from my complaint to take PERUNA and be convinced. Yours truly, Mrs. J. W. Reynolds." Now, that's her card, word for word, and as I am well acquainted with the lady, I do not believe she would lie. It is truly wonderful how your medicine does do good.

James L. Mooney, Prospect, Ohio, writes: "For the past ten years I have been suffering from constipation and dyspepsia, and all the evil effects that accompany them. I was treated by a number of doctors, all to no effect. I used several patent medicines, which did me no good, and about three years ago I was seized with a severe nervous trouble, and was obliged to quit farming. I thought my days would soon be over, but last winter I received one of your pamphlets called the "Ills of Life." I at once tried your PERUNA and MANALIN. They helped me right away. I used nine bottles of PERUNA and three of MANALIN; and now I am quite well, and able to resume farming. I also had a little child which was attacked with a severe cramp in the stomach; we thought it would go into spasms. I used nothing but PERUNA. We gave it an injection of PERUNA and warm water, and gave it a teaspoonful of the medicine internally every half hour. It was relieved in one hour, and has not been bothered since. I have also used it with as good effect in case of croup and colds. I know that it is a wonderful medicine, and recommend it to all who are in poor health. The above statement I am willing to swear to."

W. M. Plants, Deep Valley, Greene county, Pa., writes: "Please send me your book on the 'Ills of Life.' I have used one bottle of PERUNA, and am greatly benefited."

CATARRH Hay Fever

I have been a great sufferer from Hay Fever for fifteen years. I read of the many wonderous cures of Ely's Cream Balm and thought I would try once more. In fifteen minutes after one application I was wonderfully helped. Two weeks ago I commenced using it and now I feel entirely cured. It is the greatest discovery ever known. Duhamel Clark, Farmer, Lee, Mass.

Plantain Leaves for Snake Poison.

A Marlborough (N.Y.) letter to the New York Times says: Charles M. Purdy is one of the leading commission merchants in New York who handle the fruit products of the Hudson Valley. Mr. Purdy's residence is near Marlborough. About 80 years ago Mr. Purdy's mother, then a young woman, while rambling along the bank of the Hudson here, on what is now the Thomas T. Buckley estate, was bitten by a rattlesnake on the leg. The poison caused great pain and the limb was discolored very much, and the old settlers said that the only thing to do was to mount a fast horse and to ride to the Marlborough mountain and coax an old Indian woman, who lived there then in a cave all alone, to come and cure her. This was done, and the life of Mrs. Purdy was saved through the medicine furnished by this old squaw. It is a simple remedy—a small cupful of the juice of the plantain weed, which is to be found along every road and in nearly every door yard in the country.

Mrs. Purdy gave these facts to the Times' correspondent for publication expressing the hope that inasmuch as the plaintain juice undoubtedly saved the life of Mr. Purdy's mother the same service might be available to others if publicity was given to the facts.

Inquiry made among farmers and country people generally elicited the information that plantain weed is used extensively for poulticing, to heal up running sores and to break up cases of chills and fever. Dr. A. H. Palmer, of this town, says that a handful of plantain leaves made into a cup of tea breaks up severe attacks of certain malarial disorders when other specifics fail. Old inhabitants say plantain leaves years ago were considered a sure cure for hydrophobia. Wood choppers on the Plattekill, Marlborough, and Shawangunk mountains say that they have long known that plantain juice would prevent fatal results from the bite of a rattlesnake. Toads and other animals know the menical properties of the plantain weed. When bitten by a snake they invariably hop to where the specific can be found.

Smuggler's Tricks.

The curious tricks to which people resort who deal in contraband goods, show a zeal and ingenuity worthy of a better cause. One dealer in costly lace used to run in a valuable lot through the gates of Paris, under the very feet and eyes of the officials, on the back of a little dog, who had another coat neatly fitted all over his back, which he wore with as much grace as his own hairy jacket. The lace was wound smoothly and evenly about his body, and he could carry thousands of dollars' worth in this way, and nobody be the wiser. He was a sharp little fellow, and when baffled at one gate, would run off to another, slipping in under the very hoofs of the horses as a carriage rolled along. The trick was at last suspected, and the wary dog, rather than suffer himself to be caught, took to the water, and was shot. He had a costly winding sheet of lace about him, when he came to be examined. Such a faithful dog ought to have had a better master.

There is a museum of these confiscated articles at Paris, which is now and then visited by the curiosity hunter, where is a pile of coals, with a spool of sewing thread in each chunk; boots with French watches hid in the heels; a coffin which is filled with cigars; a huge stuffed boaconstrictor, a rent in whose sides disclosed a precious assignment of valuable laces; a huge African hangs by his neck in a very ghastly fashion, but a stroke of the cane shows him to be only a sounding tin. He used to figure on the footboard of a carriage, as an attendant, and drove in and out many times through the gates of Paris. But one time, in a jam, when everybody was scolding and swearing and trying to get on, an officer present harangued the crowd of drivers and told them to take an example of equanimity from this black, who looked on so serenly amidst the tumult. Slapping the good fellow approvingly on the shoulder, he was surprised to hear him give a very metallic rattle. He was taken to the inspection room, and found to be filled with excellent brandy, which was drawn off at the toe. They soon sampled an 'armful' of the fluid, and the poor black's day of service was over.

A somewhat similar game was played on English custom house officers, who inspected a consignment to Dr. Swartz, which proved to be four African heads preserved in brandy, and also some other pickled 'remains' all in 'excellent preservation.' They 'passed,' and the owners poured off the brandy from their porcelain heads and the bone, and drank to the health of the sharp officials in the excellent liquor.

Fashion-Hints from Peterson's Magazine for October.

Black, in all materials, continues to be much worn, even for full-dress.—Peterson's Magazine.

There is no special change in styles of making dresses: pointed waists, short on the hips, jackets with waistcoat-fronts, short round jackets, and round waists with belts, are all fashionable.—Peterson's Magazine.

Tunics are worn both long and short, though the latter are perhaps the more fashionable.—Peterson's Magazine.

Sleeves are still slightly gathered into the arm-holes; but they do not stand up quite as high as they did.—Peterson's Magazine.

Woolen will be principally used for walking and out-door dresses, this fall: silk and velvet being reserved for more ceremonious occasions.—Peterson's Magazine.

Hats are generally worn high in the crown and with narrow brims: we record this as the fashion, but we think it unbecoming.—Peterson's Mayazine.

Bonnets have a decided tendency to a peak in front, and this peak is high enough to admit of a flower or a bow of ribbon beneath it: the long poke-bonnet is now used principally for morning-wear.—Peterson's Magazine.

Corsages, of black, sapphire, or ruby velvet, or of Sicilienne in the same hues, are now worn with skirts of cream-white, and considered very stylish.—Paris letter in Peterson's Magazine.

Velvet is extensively used for trimming, this fall: this is to say, velvet by the yard, cut biar, and employed in very wide bands.—Paris letter in Peterson's Magazine.

DOWNS' ELIXIR.

N. H. DOWNS'

Vegetable Balsamic

ELIXIR

For the cure of

Consumption, Coughs, Colds, Catarrh, Croup, Asthma, Pleurisy, Hoarseness, Influenza, Spitting Blood, Bronchitis, and all diseases of the Throat, Chest, and Lungs. In all cases where this Elixir is used its efficacy is at once manifested, convincing the most incredulous that is not incurable, if properly attended to.—At its commencement it is but a slight irritation of the membrane which covers the Lungs; then an inflamation, when the cough is rather dry, local fever, and the pulse more frequent, the cheeks flushed and chills more common. This Elixir in curing the above complaints, operates so as to remove all morbid irritations and inflamation from the lungs to the surface, and finally expel them from the system. It facilitates expectoration.

It heals the ulcerated surfaces and relieves the cough and makes the breathing easy. It supports the strength and at the same time reduces the fever. It is free from strong opiate and astringent articles, which are of so drying a nature as to be in great danger of destroying the patient; whereas this medicine never dries or stops the cough, but, by removing the cause, consequently, when the cough is cured the patient is well. Send address for pamphlet giving full directions, free.

Price 35 cts., 50 cts., and $1.00 per bottle.
